CALL FOR APPLICATIONS

About OSCE Local Dialogue Academy for Young Women

The OSCE Local Dialogue Academy for Young Women provides a platform for young women to overcome barriers in communication, deconstruct stereotypes and sets a baseline for dialogue through peer-to-peer learning, coaching and mentoring activities. It aims at enhancing network communication between communities focusing on common issues of concern, in particular related to gender equality and women empowerment.

Qualifications

The call is open to young women between the ages of 16 and 19³ from Kosovo with interests in participating in policy and decision making processes, voluntarism, community work, and advocacy. English language skills are not mandatory.

Structure and topics

The OSCE Local Dialogue Academy for Young Women envisages five days of team-building exercises, as well as peer-to-peer coaching and interactive training, covering topics such as, gender equality, women empowerment and participation in public and policy making processes, leadership, along with coaching on practical skills.

Through interactive learning modules, the participants will have the opportunity to expand their knowledge in women empowerment, leadership and building communication bridges for a resilient society. The topics that will be covered include:

- Confidence building measures;
- Women empowerment and participation in public and policy making processes;
- Dialogue and conflict resolution;
- Professional team-building exercises;
- Practical skills (how to write a motivation letter, CV, etc.).
