Criminal Code

The Government of the Principality of Andorra adopted a new Criminal Code on 21 February 2005 (Qualified Law on Criminal Code), concretising new dispositions for combating and preventing terrorism. The new Criminal Code includes all penal measures contained in the antiterrorist conventions and treaties currently in force. A new chapter entitled "Terrorist crimes" has been introduced defining the terms of terrorist groups and terrorist activities and criminalizing them from 20 to 30 years. The new Code also criminalizes persons belonging to and/or collaborating with a terrorist group and all other crimes that could have terrorist implications. The Code refers to terrorism in the following articles:

- 362: Definition of terrorism
- 363: Penalty
- 364: Offences with a terrorist purpose
- 365: Active involvement in a terrorist group
- 366: Collaboration with a terrorist group
- 367: Importance of repentance
- 409: Money and values laundering
- 410: Type qualified (aggravating)
- 411: Additional consequences

- 412: Implementation of the Criminal Code
- 413: Punitive reductions in criminal policies

On 27 October 2008 entered into force an amendment to the Criminal Code and an amendment to the Criminal Procedure Code (1998), both amendments modify and introduce provisions relating to money-laundering and financing of terrorism offences in order to adopt most MONEYVAL Recommendations.

The main changes are:

- The autonomous crime of financing of terrorism (article 366 bis) has been introduced. The definition of the financing of terrorism is widely taken from the Convention for the Suppression of the Financing of Terrorism, New York 1999
- The predicate offence of corruption has been added to the article 409 related to Money and values laundering
- Laundering by negligence has been introduced.

Prevention of the Money Laundering

A law related to International Criminal cooperation and the fight against the laundering of money and securities deriving from international delinquency entered into force on 29 December 2000, and its regulation on 22 August 2002. The Decree also established by law the Money Laundering Prevention Unit (although the Unit existed since 2000), specified its mandate and functions. The main task of the Unit is to promote and coordinate measures to prevent the money laundering.

The International Criminal cooperation and the fight against the laundering of money and securities deriving from international delinquency law provides that the persons under obligation of the law must maintain special vigilance over all operations, whether suspicious or not, when they are presented under complex or unusual conditions and seem to have no economic justification or legal purpose, in particular transactions likely to involve money-laundering and those requiring special monitoring according to the non-restrictive official communications issued by the Andorran Money-Laundering Prevention Unit. An Amendment to this law was passed on 11th December 2008, and was published in the BOPA on 21st January 2009, extending the tasks and power of the Money Laundering Prevention Unit, providing the Unit with the necessary tools and measures to combat more efficiently the financing of terrorism and the money laundering and taking into account the MONEYVAL recommendations and FATF 40+9 Recommendations.

The main changes of this new law are:

- Extension of Customer Due Diligence (CDD) and reporting obligations to the financing of terrorism, which has been criminalised.
- Principle of risk has been introduced. Enhanced CDD measures are required in the case of PEP's and other risky situations.
- In general terms, CDD and reporting obligations have been widened and strengthened in accordance with FATF and EU standards (e.g. requiring relevant and updated information on the client and beneficial owners and their activities, full identification and verification of clients and beneficial owners) that are applicable to both financial parties under obligation and to DNFBPs.

Currently the Andorran authorities are working on the amendment of Regulations of the International Criminal cooperation and the fight against the laundering of money and securities deriving from international delinquency law and against the financing of terrorism.

- d) Information on national efforts to prevent and combat terrorism, including appropriate information on legislation beyond United Nations conventions and protocols (e.g., pertaining to financing of terrorist groups);

The Money Laundering Prevention Unit of Andorra is also a member of the Egmont Group since June 2002

The Government of Andorra has adopted a national plan on combating the money laundering and the financing of terrorism, on December 2007. It includes the implementation of MONEYVAL recommendations. The implementation of the recent adopted laws is carried out by the Money Laundering Prevention Unit (UPB).

On the 10th of December 2008 the Moneyval plenary adopted the progress report on Andorra. It contains a detailed description of the latest efforts on the prevention of money laundering and the financing of terrorism on Andorra., and can be found in the following link:
